on the street is about their great service but their service is just part of what they do... it’s what they give back to the community. From Breast Cancer Awareness work, Habitat for Humanity, Women in Distress, their work in the community is a full time project in itself. They even plan a day for you to shred your important documents to make sure they’re helping local businesses. Their staff is committed to working above and beyond their expected responsibilities, from collecting school supplies for children in our area, to their own backpack program, to helping businesses in need. But better yet they are truly, truly involved.”
